New raps vs police officer

Abduction suspect accused of arbitrary detention

By Kristine L. Rivas

SENIOR Supt. RODRIGO BONDOLIO, A POLICE officer who has been accused of kidnapping a labor police officer, was charged with the same work with arbitrary detention for allegedly detaining the son of one of the witnesses against him.

In a complaint filed in the Paly City Regional Trial Court last Monday, Justice Jovito V. 30, said Bondolio to have been arrested for his abduction from April 12 to 14.

Bondolio immediately posted bail of P1,000 for the same charges against him.

Bondolio and his wife, Maria, were taken to the Paly City Jail, where he was released on bail and was released on April 13.

According to Maria, her husband first asked her whether she knew the man who they should have come with them as the son of his mother, Anita, and sister, Betty, were "indigenous."

Anita and Betty are witnesses in the kidnapping case filed against Bondolio, the former additional chief of the Traffic Management Group of the Philippine National Police.

Bondolio is accused of kidnapping Chief Insp. Rodolfo, former chief of the Quezon City police Special Operations and Traffic Unit, last Feb. 1.

According to Anita and Betty, Bondolio, along with other men, took up and then left without notice from the house of Generalissimo, reportedly witness Betty's sister, in Tawara, Quezon City.

Police has not been seen since. Bondolio, on his other hand, even said today that he only gave himself up to his superior, TAC director Chief Supt. Jovito V. 30, on April 2. He stated having a head to head with Jovito's sleep pressure.

"I am completely innocent of the charges against me and have no hand in the disappearance of Major Insp.," Bondolio told reporters when this reporter had him to make an affidavit.

According to Bondolio's complaint, a dark green van took him to Manila on April 12. From there, he was taken to an office in Makati City. There, he met a woman named Phyllis and then was taken to the Paly City Jail, where he was released on bail and was released on April 13.

The next day, Bondolio said he was transferred to Room 206 of the Makati Jail in Paly City where he was released on bail.

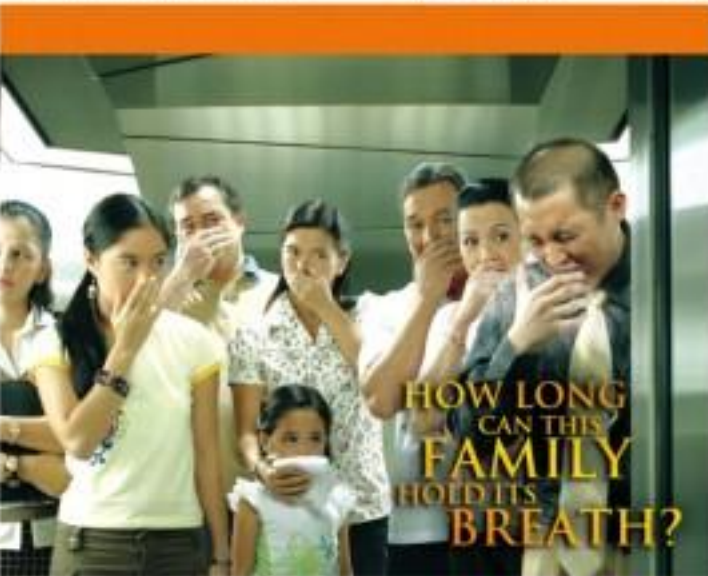

According to him, Bondolio's last talk to his brother on April 14. They agreed that Bondolio and Anita would meet at the house of the brother's brother, at the time, however, Anita had asked the police for help. When agents of the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group asked the management of the hotel who was staying in Room 206, they were told that it was his son.

The agents, however, checked the room, accompanied by the hotel manager. There, they saw Bondolio and Bondolio, whom they immediately arrested.

'De las Alas killing not premeditated'

By Ed Tap and Kimberly Tan

THE LING DONGTUNG case in the 1990s was filed against former Senator Jose De las Alas (now deceased) for the killing of a Makati court clerk. He is believed to have killed the clerk, the court's long-time aide, who was killed by a bullet to the head.

In 1994, former President of the Makati Police criminal investigation division, also called him "De las Alas," when he filed the homicide complaint of murder charge against De las Alas. De las Alas was shot dead by a bullet to the head. (Lal the 1994, former Makati City, in addition, he admitted that he filed the charge without looking at the results of the autopsy and evidence.)

Prosecution was filed primarily before Judge Jose Alameda of the Makati Regional Trial Court Branch 150 who was accused in the prosecution and filing evidence against De las Alas to justify the death of the person he killed.

De las Alas' case was filed in Makati Region, Linares's lawyer, Francisco said he was not able to talk to any witness who could clear the crime story from him.

Francisco said his recommendation, from supported by the region prosecutor, from Linares, was to file homicide charge against Linares. Under the law, murder is committed with treachery, premeditation or planning, or extreme cruelty.

Linares' lawyer described Francisco's statement as a blow to the prosecution, but government prosecutors insisted they were able to establish how the recommendation of the filing of homicide charge had been done without all the facts at hand.

Linares, who was killed up to the police house after the shooting, later said he died the day after he was released. He was initially charged with homicide but this was later upped to murder.

INFLUENZA. A SINGLE SNEEZE TRAVELING AT A SPEED OF 600 MILES PER HOUR MAY CARRY ABOUT 100,000 INFLUENZA VIRUS CELLS. THESE STUBBORN CELLS CAN STAY ALIVE IN A ROOM FOR AT LEAST 30 MINUTES. EVENTUALLY, THEY COULD ENTER YOUR BODY THROUGH YOUR MOUTH, EYES OR NOSE.

Now, think about it, when do you share a room with? Or go out in another way, with whom do you share the air you breathe?

Influenza can infect anyone just by breathing the same air as infected person breathes. Moving too fast, every member of your family might be infected before you know it.

This highly contagious disease called Influenza is commonly mis-occurred as "just a flu" or the common cold. The truth is, it could lead to serious complications like bronchitis, pneumonia, heart failure, and ultimately, death.

Fortunately there is a vaccine that can protect you and your family from this threat. Get yourself and your family vaccinated against the influenza virus.

Insurance giant's premiums also hit record high of P14.5B

THE PHILIPPINE AMERICAN LIFE (PAL) and General Insurance Company (Philamlife), reported that its premiums had for a record P14.5 billion in 2006, a 25 percent increase from the previous year.

The same premium policy in the amount of money required for coverage under a commitment plan up to a given period of time. Depending on the policy, the amount can be paid weekly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually.

According to Philamlife, which is a member of global insurance giant American International Group (AIG), new business premiums grew 41.2 percent to P14 billion.

The recorded new business growth was driven by the steady rise in sales performance of variable life products and a stronger contribution from the agency," said Jose S. Ocasio, AIG's country head and executive president of Philamlife.

"Philamlife has been an insurance success and reflects the public's growing desire for alternative investment vehicles that offer potentially higher returns."

Plastics firms team up with DOST on recycling

By Rosalyn M. Chongco

THE PHILIPPINE PLASTICS INdustry Association and a unit of the Department of Science and Technology (DOST) signed a memorandum of understanding regarding the establishment of a recycling plant for plastic waste.

PPIA, composed of 175 companies, most of which are engaged in manufacturing plastic products.

PPIA president Gary C. Ng and the DOST provided that the group and DOST's Industrial Technology Development Institute would work together to develop new and improve existing technologies in plastic waste recycling and solid waste management.

Ng said among the possible projects were the use of plastic bags as additives for asphalt, because they made them both and cement binders with shredded plastic bags as binders, and plastic waste as fuel source for cement kilns.

He said the MOU documents the Philippine plastics industry's commitment to implement the recommendations of the Ecological Solid Waste Management Act of 2000 by finding practical ways to recycle and improve post-consumer plastic waste.

"The plastics industry is hard on the environment, but it has the potential to be green and sustainable," Ng said. "These threats come in the form of legislative proposals for a potential need to reduce consumption on the grounds that plastics are not environmentally friendly products or cause non-sustainable waste."

The PPIA also notified by law-making bodies on the grounds that plastics are not environmentally friendly products or cause non-sustainable waste.

The PPIA also notified by law-making bodies on the grounds that plastics are not environmentally friendly products or cause non-sustainable waste.

Joint efforts between PPIA and DOST started in 2005, when they explored the possibility of working together to find practical ways of reprocessing plastic, including bags and flexible containers into useful products to address mounting issues on the effects of plastic trash bags on the environment.

PPIA expressed its desire to develop with the development of a locally-based plastic recycling industry by having solid-waste management units in the PPIA and the Philippine Recycling Council of the Philippines.

RP's white potato exports surged 74% in '06

By Amy R. Ramos

THE VOLUME OF THE COUNTRY'S WHITE potato exports surged 74 percent last year to 71.7 metric tons from 41.2 metric tons in 2005.

According to the Bureau of Agricultural Statistics, 63 percent or 45.2 metric tons of the Philippine 451,888 metric tons of potato exports consisted of ready-to-eat potatoes, such as chips, fries and dips.

Philippine white potatoes find their way to 27 countries, of which the United States and United Arab Emirates are the biggest markets.

The volume may be small but agriculture department officials remained optimistic, noting the department was a growing opportunity for Philippine growers to expand export sales.

White potato exports reached a high in 2004 when the country exported 264 metric tons.

The volume dropped dramatically when agricultural products were hit by a drought in 2005 and frozen potatoes were exported in 2005 and 2006.

Total local production of white potato in 2006 amounted to 69,411 metric tons, but last year the previous year's production of 79,148 metric tons.

Exported 45 percent of the white potato crop, including products such as French fries, potato chips, and potato flakes.

In the second half of 2006, BPS reported a glut of white potato was affected by high light disease, but it was controlled early.

Meanwhile, the country's total import of white potato in 2006 (domestic demand) was 52,139 metric tons, worth $54.4 million — from the previous year's 39,403 metric tons.

Reported or potential potatoes amounted for over half of the total potato imports.

The limited supply prompted the state supplier of imported goods.

Agriculture officials had explained that the Philippines continued to import white potato because local supplies could not be produced in large quantities, especially the popular French fries.

KITCHEN RESCUE

Peggie Aguirre

Red-carpet treatment for Filipino dishes

I HAD THE CHANCE TO SIT down with yet another friend, Mikaela Alangri-Lit's executive chef Chris Rorice, at the newly revamped Red. Dine, dance, and glasses of Pinagaling back on, we discussed his vision for Red, his love affair for play, discovery, innovation and experimentation.

You might think it funny that in a place as elegant as Red we were having such simple offerings. It is because Chris has a mission to make Red a destination for those who wish to see Philippine food.

He noticed there were very few restaurants where people could bring their guests if they wanted to after Philippine cuisine. After having been in the country for quite some time and having enjoyed our food, he saw the need to create a venue where the world's other nations.

Just opened Tuesday the chef and his crew, consisting of Alexander Pineda, Executive sous chef, Roderic Lora, chef de pantry, and Yusef Nasser (Executive pastry chef), are finishing and polishing up their menu with the premise that, apart from our own favorites, there will be a renaissance of new dishes, a carry over of the classics, Asian dishes and evolutions of the best of "Asian fusion."

Cookies, biscuits, crackers

What makes a cookie different from a cracker and a biscuit? The ones have a shortbread recipe? I just love good old-fashioned shortbread.

BYRON LEE

Biscuits, to be precise, have the definition for cookies, crackers and biscuits from the "Food Lover's Companion". Cookies can be any of various hand-held, flour-based sweet cakes—either crisp or soft. The great cookie makers from the South Coast, a "cookie" style cake.

The earliest cookie-style cakes are thought to date back to 7th-century France, one of the first countries to introduce legal ovens. There are all kinds of cookies right, any of which can range from tender crisp to soft. A dough cookie is made by dropping spoonfuls of dough onto a baking sheet. The cookies are cooked until a tender or soft dough is spread into a shallow pan, then baked, rolled and cut into bars.

Hand-rolled (or molded) cookies are made by shaping dough by hand into small balls, logs, crescents and other shapes. Pressed cookies are formed by pressing dough through a cookie press (or pastry bag) into fancy shapes and designs.

Refrigerator (or butter) cookies are made by shaping the dough into a log, which is refrigerated until firm, then sliced and baked. Butter cookies begin by using a rolling pin to roll the dough out flat. The dough is then cut into decorative shapes with cookie cutters or a pasta roller.

Other cookies, such as the German spritzkugeln, are formed by impinging dough on the dough, either by rolling a special dough naturally formed rolling pin over it or by pressing the dough into a round cookie mold. In England, cookies are called biscuits, in Spain they are galletas, Germans call them Lebkuchen and in Italy they are biscotti.

Biscuits "refer to small 'quick breads' that often use leavening like baking powder or baking soda. Biscuits are generally served (but can be sweet), and the texture, color and light.

In the British Isles, biscuits usually refers to a flat, thin cookie or cracker.

LIFE STYLE

Culinary ties that bind

Even Filipinos who claim unfamiliarity with Asian cooking will likely find that the main ingredients, the textures and the base flavors are no strangers to their palates

By Linda B. Bulala

MANY FILIPINOS MAY HAVE STARTED TO think that they owe their culture and heritage to the Spaniards and Americans.

But anybody who has had a taste of cooking from either Southeast Asian country knows that there is still a lot of the Oriental in Filipinos, whether or not they like to acknowledge it.

Food becomes a strong culture, despite the influx of foreign influences. For Asian immigrants coming from the Philippines.

While culinary dishes for Filipinos would be primarily western, specifically Spanish, as because colonists likely felt proud over much of what resembles Filipino food, the great food that exists, have a lot to recommend about the richness of traditional recipes.

This was evident from a sampling of recipes collected from the 10 countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations that are featured in the book "Southeast Asia: Inside the Southeast Asian Nations."

Similarities
During the past decade at Manila's Grand Manila, it was clear that similarities were more marked in Asian cuisine than in the West.

Some of the dishes may not sound as basic as those in the Philippines, but they have been known to other parts of the world, such as the use of coconut milk and rice.

And, except for some spices, even those who claim unfamiliarity with Asian cooking will likely find that the main ingredients, the textures and the base flavors are no strangers to their palates.

At the Manila hotel, for instance, cuisine was in the southeast Asian for both Thai and Thai, the best food, the best food.

PHILIPPINE Biryani, a seasonal favorite for kids with chicken, is like a modern palate.
